

TRICIA REINHOLD
OWNER/MANAGER/PILOT, JTR AVIATION

I started out of High School wanting to go in the Travel Industry. This led to a wide scope of careers in aviation.

Starting as a Travel Agent booking flights and writing tickets, and continuing on to a job with a commuter airline working with passengers, loading bags and doing weight & balance paperwork. I soon pursued a job with a major airline working as a gate agent, in reservations, as a Flight Attendant, settling into working the ramp and in airline operations.

In 1987 I began flying lessons and finishing my college at Embry-Riddle Aeronautical University. I graduated with a major in Flight Operations Administration. To build flight experience I became a Flight Instructor conducting ground school classes & flight training, hauling bank checks & medical supplies, working in flight operations writing pilot safety memos & company operating procedures. I went on to fly for the Forest Service doing aerial firefighting throughout the United States as well as an Airline First Officer in the Northwest. Currently I am qualified on several corporate jet aircraft.

After learning & being involved in all aspects of business aviation I took the opportunity to start my own company. This has given me the challenge to do pilot service on several aircraft, buying & selling aircraft, aircraft management, all accounting, and managing the business. I have continued on this endeavor by owning and managing 3 separate businesses.
